The Development Process

This webpage documents the various stages my project has gone through. It includes the assignments I have completed for the ENGL877 "Advanced Topics in Digital Humanities" course. Click on the title of the post you would like to read in order to access the full text.

GO TO PROJECT MAIN WEBSITE

Author Introduction and Annotated Bibliography

Cornelia Sorabji, an exceptional Indian female social activist, was born in the western side of India in 1866 during the time of British colonization of her country. Roye (2015) notes that Sorabji's parent...

Wordpress Review

As a website development tool, Wordpress has an organized layout. When compared to HTML and Mobirise, Wordpress has a better presentation of the tools available for the user. Upon signing up...

Mobirise Review

Considering my short experience in building website, I am surprised of how easy it is to build a website using an application like Mobirise, especially when compared to HTML. HTML requir...

Identity Statement

My name is Majed Alatawi and I am a graduate student at the Department of English at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. As a student who is interested in focusing on cultural and ethnic...